WINES
OF SANTA CLARA VALLEY

EXPLORE, LEARN, AND IMMERSE

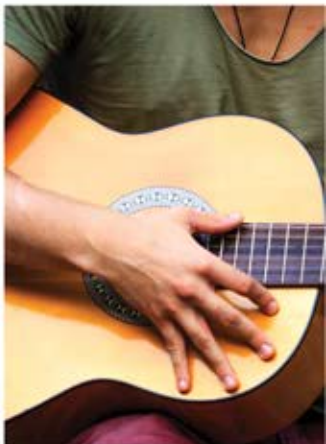

Our winemakers are producing globally recognized wines, winning medals for best of class, gold and silver as well as being honored as having some of the top wines in the state.

When you visit, expect to taste an array of wines, from traditional Santa Clara Valley Zinfandel and Carignane, to grapes from the French regions of Burgandy (Pinot Noir and Chardonnay), Bordeaux (Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc and Merlot) and Rhone (Viognier, Grenache and Syrah) as well as Italian varietals such as Charbono and Sangiovese - all proudly exhibiting a spectacular blend of microclimate, geography and history.

We invite you to come explore, learn, and immerse yourself in the events and activities going on throughout the year (70+ during summer months). Also, consider becoming a wine club member at one or more of the wineries to take advantage of their elevated club events.

Here's a glimpse into just some of the public events and activities:

- Start your day off with Yoga in the Vines, attend a DIY workshop, or an art class.
- Grab tickets to a singer songwriter series, picnic, hang out for the live music or book a horseback ride.

COME FOR THE DAY OR WEEKEND TO UNWIND, TAKE IN THE VIEWS, SIP ON SOME WINE AND EXPERIENCE THE LAID BACK WINERY CULTURE.

Just a short drive from Silicon Valley and Santa Cruz in a lush great valley between the Santa Cruz Mountains and the Diablo Mountain Range sits the Wineries of Santa Clara Valley, an association representing the first premier wine production region in California.

By the early 1900's, with over expansion, the Great Depression, Prohibition and then Phylloxera, over 10,000 acres vanished. In 1910, over half the wineries were gone. Those families with deep roots endured, and within time, winemaking made a roaring comeback.

The history of the Santa Clara Valley dates back to the 1700s when Spanish padres first arrived. Seeing snarls of native grapevines along the creeks and valleys was a sign that their grape cuttings would thrive here. Later when the French immigrated to California during the Gold Rush, they brought their winemaking expertise and improved grape growing techniques and wine quality.

In 1989, the Santa Clara Valley was designated a distinct American Viticultural Area (AVA) which also includes two smaller AVAs, Pacheco Pass AVA and San Ysidro District AVA.

In the 1850s, Santa Clara Valley had flourished with more acres of vineyards than any other county in California. Thirty years later the valley expanded to nearly 15,000 acres of vines and over 100 wineries. In the early 1880's the Italians, with centuries of best practices in winemaking behind them, came to share in the valley's bounty.

In 2014, the 30 mile Santa Clara Valley Wine Trail was established with directional signage helping drivers stay on course. There are 20+ wineries located along the route and 10+ remote wineries off the main trail.

The Wineries of Santa Clara Valley is home to 30+ wineries ranging from roots more than a hundred years old, to innovative newcomers who love to explore new varietals and techniques, to a fascinating combination of the two. Come experience it yourself.
